

CELEBRATE ARCHIVES WEEK 2006

RECOVERING WOMEN'S HISTORY: AN EXPLORATION INTO THE HISTORICAL RECORD New Mexico State Records Center and Archives 1209 Camino Carlos Rey, Santa Fe, New Mexico

Archives Week events serve to raise awareness of the significance of historical documents and their relevance to the issues of today. The State Records Center and Archives (SRCA) has chosen "Recovering Women's History: An Exploration into the Historical Record" as the theme for this year's celebration. For registration information for events not listed please refer to events listing.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Historical Film Screening

Wednesday, October 18, 2006 - 7:00 PM to 9:00 PM

Northern New Mexico College - Nick L. Salazar Center for the Arts

The SRCA and Northern New Mexico College present four films from the New Mexico State Archives Historic Motion Picture Film Collection that document and highlight the lives of various women. As these women share their individual experiences and recollections, audience members will discover that the stories of determination, self-reliance, and perseverance are reminiscent of their own lives and universally shared by the larger community. Whether educating young mothers in the 1930s, challenging stereotypes and breaking gender barriers, imparting one's native language and culture, or overcoming poverty and illiteracy, these women are representative of those who came before and those yet to come.

Women's Symposium

Thursday, October 19 - 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM and Friday, October 20 - 9:00 AM to 3:30 PM

State Records Center and Archives - Public Entrance: 1209 Camino Carlos Rey

Various facets of women's history will be presented during this two day symposium. Topics include women and the law in the colonial and territorial periods (1598-1912); women's perspectives of the Bataan Campaign; motion picture film as a form of documentation of public health and women in the early twentieth century; and women's roles in the traditional curing arts and society's reaction to them. Speakers include John Kessel, Ph.D.; Suzanne Stamatov, Ph.D.; Robert Torrez; Orlando Romero; Malcolm Ebright, Judith Fein, Pam England, Elissa Heyman, Camille Moser, Marcella Lopez, and daughters of Bataan survivors.

Historical Film Screening - Public Health Films

Saturday, October 21, 2006 - 3:00 PM to 5:00 PM

Santa Fe Film Center (formerly Cinemacafe) - St. Michaels West Shopping Center

Produced by the New Mexico Department of Health in the mid 1930s during a time when New Mexico's infant mortality rate was the highest in the nation (an alarming two times the national average), these 16mm silent films, the cutting edge media of their day, represent one component of a public health educational outreach initiative which emphasized maternal and infant health in an effort to improve the overall health of New Mexico's culturally diverse population. Lena McQuade, PhD candidate in American Studies at the University of New Mexico, and Professor Jake Spidle of the History Department at the University will introduce the films and provide historical context for the program. Information regarding resources for public health history in repositories throughout the state will also be provided.

FREE REGISTRATION

Yes, please register me for Archives Week 2006 events!

Name _____

Title _____

Organization _____

Address _____

City _____

State & Zip _____

Phone _____

Email _____

- | | | |
|--------------------------|---------------------------|------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Española Film Screening | FREE |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Women's Symposium | FREE |
| <input type="checkbox"/> | Historical Film Screening | FREE |

Seating for all events is limited. To reserve your seat, please send in your registration form or call 476-7948.

Archives Week 2006 posters are available for a suggested donation of $5.00. To order, please call 476-7948.

Please mail this form to:

New Mexico State Records Center and Archives
Archives and Historical Services Division
1205 Camino Carlos Rey
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87507

For a complete listing of events, please visit the SRCA website at www.nmcp.state.nm.us or call 505-476-7948.

